- The Tajikistan women's national team has never played a match at senior level, making their participation – let alone as a group host – a unique story, and a matter of great interest in the qualifying tournament.

- Tajikistan has previously had age-group teams in women's football, with its under-19 side falling to three defeats in hard-fought, competitive matches in attempting to qualify for the 2017 AFC U-19 Women's Championship.

- Little is known of individual players, but Coach Sulaymon Bobokalonov has previously taken charge of Tajikistan's women's teams.

- The 2018 hosts have already qualified for the finals but are also taking part in the qualifying tournament; with the second ranked team in Group A to progress to the finals should Jordan finish first.

- Jordan had been ranked as high as 52nd in the world before becoming unranked due to a prolonged period of inactivity in the March 2017 FIFA Women's Rankings update.

- Qualified for the last AFC Women's Asian Cup, and were somewhat competitive against Australia and Vietnam (both 1-3), before being thrashed 0-7 by Japan.

- Captain Stephanie Al Naber has previously played in Denmark for Fortuna Hjørring and her brother Yousef has two caps for the Jordanian men's national team.

- Having avoided drawing some of the more decorated opponents in the qualifying tournament, the Philippines has the opportunity to appear in the tournament for the first time since 2003 (when there was no qualification process)
- Captained by goalkeeper Inna Palacios, the Philippines held extensive trials of locally-based players in February 2017 with an eye to the qualifiers.
- In recent years, the team has featured a number of US-based players with Filipino heritage, as well as many locally-based student footballers who combine football with university studies.
- The Philippine Football Federation has launched a new PFF Women's League, with 11 teams representing both clubs and universities kicking off the new competition in November 2016.
- Coach Leticia 'Buda' Bautista is the first woman to take charge of the national team, and is a former Philippines international defender herself.

- One of the most active West Asian teams, Bahrain competed in the Aphrodite Cup (similar to the Algarve and Cyprus Cups, but for lower-ranked teams) in 2015 and 2017.

- They beat Maldives twice in friendly matches in January (5-1, 3-1) before losing to European nations Estonia (ranked 80, 0-3), Lithuania (87, 0-2) and Cyprus (106, 1-7) in the Aphrodite Cup.

- Bahrain hosted a qualifying group for the 2014 AFC Women's Asian Cup, but they were well beaten by Vietnam and Hong Kong, before beating Kyrgyz Republic 4-1.

- The team will begin their campaign with a tough encounter against highly-fancied Jordan before moving onto meetings with Tajikistan and UAE on days two and three.

- Absent from the international scene since 2011, Iraq are entering a major competitive women's tournament for the first time in their history.

- They will kick off their campaign against Tajikistan, who are yet to play a match as a senior national team, presenting two of the tournament's least experienced teams with the opportunity to claim a precious win.

- Iraq's U16 women's team competed in the AFC Championship in 2016, and were – with some exceptions – relatively competitive, and picked up one win against Palestine from their five matches.

- Entering the tournament for the first time, but unlike Iraq and Tajikistan, this team has played senior international matches consistently throughout the last two years.
- 10 friendly matches in 2016 (for three wins, all against Maldives) followed by four matches so far in 2017 makes UAE one of the most active women's national teams anywhere in Asia.
- A 4-0 win over Singapore and competitive losses to Azerbaijan (0-1, 2-3) underline the progress made by UAE, but the team also suffered two heavy losses (1-8 and 0-5) against Uzbekistan in March.
- Twice winners of the WAFF Women's Football Championship (2010, 2011), but did not enter the last edition of tournament in 2014.

- As World no. 10 and three time winners of the AFC Women's Asian Cup, DPR Korea highest-ranked and most decorated team in the qualifying tournament, as well as current world champions at U-17 and U-20 level.

- Eight players from the winning 2016 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup squad represented DPR Korea in the recent Cyprus Cup, where they enjoyed commanding wins over Italy (3-0), Belgium (4-1) and Republic of Ireland (2-0), with only a last-minute loss to Switzerland (0-1) preventing them from reaching the final

- The April 7th meeting with Korea Republic will occupy much of the external focus on the tournament. It is the first meeting between the teams on DPR Korea soil.

- DPR Korea has historically dominated their neighbours in women's football, losing just once in fourteen previous meetings between the two nations.

- Korea Republic have never reached the AFC Women's Asian Cup final, despite four semi-final appearances, but recent years have seen consistent improvement, and the achievement of several historic firsts in recent years

- A first-ever win at the FIFA Women's World Cup and a subsequent Round of 16 appearance in 2015 was recently followed up by an excellent showing at the Cyprus Cup, which included wins over Scotland (ranked 21, 2-0) and New Zealand (19, 2-0) to reach the final, where they lost to Switzerland.

- Korea Republic are very strong defensively. The 1-0 loss to Switzerland in the Cyprus Cup final ended a run of five consecutive clean sheets.

- Ranked in Asia's top five, and in the midst of a run of good form and results, Korea Republic have been somewhat unlucky to draw such a difficult opponent in DPR Korea, who have won the last nine encounters between the two sides.

- Star player and all-time leading scorer Ji So-yun was prominent in the Cyprus Cup, and became the first Korean woman to score the winning goal in the Women's FA Cup Final for Chelsea in 2015

- Uzbekistan took part in five AFC Women's Championship tournaments from 1995 to 2003, but haven't appeared in the final tournament since a qualification process was introduced ahead of the 2006 tournament,

- Took part in 2016 Yongchuan International tournament in China where they were beaten, but competitive against opponents with much higher rankings; Denmark (ranked 15th, 1-2), China (13th, 1-4) and Iceland (20th, 0-1)

- Convincing wins against UAE (8-1 and 5-0) in pre-qualifying friendly matches held in Dubai were timely confidence boosters.

- Uzbekistan will see their first two matches - against India and Hong Kong - as winnable fixtures, but will surprise many if they are able to finish above DPR Korea or Korea Republic

- The powerhouse of South Asian women's football, India has won all four SAFF Women's Championship tournaments (2010, 2012, 2014, 2016), beating Bangladesh in the final of last year's edition, which actually finished in January 2017.

- While they have dominated their region, India has struggled somewhat against opponents from beyond it, with a win against Bahrain in 2013 their last success against opposition from outside South Asia.

- The AIFF's Indian Women's League now gives women's players a platform to compete at a national level.

- Yumnam Devi was the top scorer in both stages of the league season, and is expected to be part of the squad in DPR Korea.

- Hong Kong appeared in the first 14 AFC Women's Championships (from 1975 to 2003), but have not appeared in the tournament's finals since qualifying became mandatory ahead of the 2006 tournament.

- Recent wins against Singapore (2-0) and Guam (1-0) ended a run of heavy defeats, including a 14-0 loss to Group B opponents Korea Republic in December 2016.

- Hong Kong are one of the higher ranked teams in the qualifying tournament, but have been dealt a difficult group featuring two of the World's top 20 teams, which would make qualifying for the 2018 finals an outstanding achievement.

- Palestine's women's national team has been out of action for two years since taking part in qualifying for the 2016 Rio Olympics, where they were beaten by Uzbekistan and Jordan (both 0-6) but earned a draw with Hong Kong (2-2)

- They hosted a qualifying group for the 2014 tournament, and picked up a draw against India (1-1) alongside heavy losses to Myanmar (0-9) and Chinese Taipei (0-6), and they will face the latter again on April 5th

- The closest geographical country to the location of next year's AFC Women's Asian Cup, with the venue for the qualifying tournament just 66 kilometres away from Amman, which will host the 2018 finals.

- One of the enduring images of the 2014 AFC Women's Asian Cup was Thailand's euphoria at securing a first ever World Cup qualification by beating host nation Vietnam in a full stadium in the play-off for fifth

- Thailand then went a step further by beating Cote d'Ivoire (3-2) in Canada, after being beaten by world class opposition (Germany and Norway, both 0-4)

- Won the 2016 AFF Women's Championship Final on penalties after earlier losing to Vietnam, before taking part in a four nations tournament in January in which they defeated Ukraine (1-0) and Myanmar (2-0) after losing to China (0-2)

- Convincingly defeated Group C rivals Chinese Taipei (5-2) in an October 2016 friendly

- Striker Taneekarn Danga is the sister of men's national team superstar Teerasil Danga.

- Coached by former Manchester City, Leicester City and Derby County defender Spencer Prior

- A powerhouse of the early years of Asian women's football, and three time Asian champion (1977, 1979, 1981), Chinese Taipei failed to qualify for the 2010 and 2014 AFC Women's Asian Cups, and hasn't won a match at the finals since 2003.

- Chinese Taipei appear to be the chief challengers to the strongly fancied Thailand, although they were well beaten by the Thais (2-5) in a friendly match last October.

- The team prepared for the qualifiers by taking part in the 2017 Istria Cup in Croatia, where they suffered losses to Slovakia (0-1), Slovenia (0-9) and Northern Ireland (1-5) before beating Hungary's B team (1-0) in a match which did not count as a full senior international.

- The group's hosts, highest ranked team and favourites to claim the single qualifying spot for Jordan 2018.

- Vietnam have been a part of the last seven AFC Women's Asian Cup finals tournaments, but have never progressed beyond the group stage

- They were just one win away from a first ever FIFA Women's World Cup when they met Thailand in the 5th place playoff on home soil in 2014, but Vietnam suffered a 2-1 defeat.

- The team reached the final of the 2016 AFF Championship but lost on penalties, again to Thailand, after a 1-1 draw in the final in Mandalay, Myanmar.

- They have been in a training camp since March 1, with coach Mai Duc Chung extensively preparing his team for the tournament.

- Vietnam begin their campaign with matches against lowly ranked opponents – Syria and Singapore –, before finishing with highly anticipated matches against Iran and Myanmar.

- Lost all three games (against Ukraine (0-4), Thailand (0-3) and China (0-2)) at Four Nations tournament in January

- Good showing in 2016 AFF Championship, finishing second, losing only on penalties and defeating a strong Australia U20 team.

- Lost on penalties to Vietnam after 3-3 draw in that tournament (in Vietnam), and 4-2 in Myanmar in 2015.

- Under the tutelage of former Dutch national team coach Roger Reijners. Reijners ended his five-year tenure by taking the Netherlands to knockout stage of the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup

- I.R. Iran are unranked due to a prolonged period of inactivity, but recently met Sweden (ranked 7th) and suffered a 7-0 defeat.

- Team Melli Women have competed relatively strongly before (and are champions of Asia in women's futsal) but their lack of recent matches makes their chances of qualification hard to predict.

- They will open the group against a strong Myanmar side in a match that will go a long way towards determining their chances of qualifying for Jordan 2018.

- Syria played their first match against Iran in 2005, but haven't played any international matches since 2011, making their participation in this tournament a major step forward for women's football in the country

- Due to their lack of recent matches Syria's quality is largely unknown, but they will begin their campaign with a match against Singapore, who are the lowest ranked of the teams Group D which have played regularly enough to be included in FIFA's rankings.

- Player Noor Jrees: "We have the power to participate, and we have the hope that we are going to make good results of course with all the support we have and the coaches who are helping a lot, we will make good results" (BBC 23/03/2017)

- Hadn't won an international match since 2007 before beating Bangladesh 3-0 In February. Despite this success, Singapore lost 4-0 to Malaysia in the same tournament, as well as suffering a 2-0 at the hands of Hong Kong on March 12.

- Singapore suffered a 14-0 defeat to Vietnam – who they will meet during this tournament – at the AFFC Women's Championship in July 2016.

- Since finishing third in 1977 AFC Women's Championship and fourth in 1983, Singaporean women's football has been overtaken by another nations in Asia, but increasing development in league system and regular national team fixtures are positive steps forward.

- Nine-game FAS Women's National League up and running, giving Singaporean players a vital platform and experience.
